The CIO of Crossbridge Capital says US may need to invest money on projects to further its foreign policy and check China.

Read full story from The Economic Times

One also has to understand that the market bottoms out much sooner than the economy and that has always been the case. If one is going to look at pure GDP numbers then one will doubt this rally, says CIO Manish Singh.

Read full story from The Economic Times

“I’d say it’s just profit taking and re-assessing,” said Manish Singh, chief investment officer at Crossbridge Capital. “The risk is still to the upside as economies keep re-opening more and more. Remember the fiscal and monetary support will stay long after things have opened up. We might see a lull over summer months but Q3/Q4 is looking bright.”

Read full story from Financial Post

Crossbridge Capital is now working with powerhouse Dimensional Fund Advisors to provide a comprehensive wealth solution to financial advisors and their clients

Read our press release

© 2026 Crossbridge Capital. All rights reserved.
This material is provided for informational purposes only and does not constitute investment advice.